CONTENT

The bill would amend the Michigan Telecommunications Act to prohibit an internet service provider from including or adding services in an end-user's service package without the end-user's express oral or written authorization. Currently, this prohibition applies to a telecommunications provider. Upon the receipt of a complaint filed by a person alleging a violation of the prohibition, or upon the Michigan Public Service Commission's own motion, the Commission may conduct a contested case as provided under the Act.
