Rep. Kimberly L. Edwards, from the 12th District, offered the following invocation:

“Dear Lord, We come before You to give thanks. Thank You Lord for all that we have been able to accomplish and for our health, safety, and prosperity in all things.

‘For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believe; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek. 17 For in it the righteousness of God is revealed from faith for faith, 5 as it is written, ‘The righteous shall live by faith.’ Romans 1:16-17.

For God so loved the world that He gave. He gave so that we may have an opportunity to sit in this chamber, to stand-up for our constituents, and to uphold the Constitution of the state of Michigan. With this opportunity we remember it is our duty to ourselves, our constituents, and You O’Lord, to be righteous, just, and truthful.

In this moment may we remain grateful to be blessed with the opportunity to serve, and complete today’s work with the same open heart and good intentions we seek to complete everyday’s work with henceforth. Amen.”

Motions and Resolutions

Reps. Zorn, Fink, Alexander, Bezotte, Haadsma, Martin, Schuette and Young offered the following resolution:

House Resolution No. 58.

A resolution to declare March 21, 2023, as Abolitionist Day in the state of Michigan.

Whereas, The abolitionist movement was born in the early 18th century in order to end the practice of slavery in America and around the world; and

Whereas, Laura Smith Haviland was a trailblazer in the American abolitionist movement, fought against injustice, and promoted freedom everywhere she went, including her home that is now known as Adrian, Michigan; and

Whereas, Smith Haviland and her family moved to Michigan during her young adult life where she would meet others already involved in the anti-slavery movement. She soon after lost her parents, husband, and child to erysipelas. This kindled her desire to devote her life to fighting against the suffering and despair of others and from there she turned her energy to the eradication of slavery.

Whereas, The abolitionist movement was made up of many people like Laura Smith Haviland who also dedicated their lives to irradiating injustice, assisting members of the underground railroad, and traveled to many states in pursuit of these missions; and

Whereas, Laura Smith Haviland was inducted into the 2018 Hall of Fame class at the National Abolition Hall of Fame in Peterboro, NY for her integral role in the anti-slavery movement in Michigan and the midwestern United States as a whole. She taught others how to confront and obstruct anti-abolition authorities and slave catchers in the north. Laura Smith Haviland is responsible for freeing and assisting in freeing countless enslaved people during her time; and

Whereas, Laura Smith Haviland continued her work to ensure freedom and dignity was afforded to as many people as possible throughout her entire life, regardless of the dangers she inevitably faced everywhere she went. She possessed a selfless attitude, an undying fortitude for justice and bravery; and

Whereas, We recognize the integral role the abolitionist movement made in our nation’s history, and moving us closer to true equality of life for all Americans; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives, That the members of this legislative body declare March 14, 2023, as Abolitionist Day in the state of Michigan.

The question being on the adoption of the resolution,
The resolution was adopted.

Reps. Coleman, Breen, Puri, Pohutsky, Brenda Carter, Morgan, Wegela, Hoskins, Rogers, McFall, Whitsett, Arbit, Bezotte, Liberati and Martin offered the following resolution:

House Resolution No. 59.

A resolution to urge the United States government and Michiganders to strengthen ties with Taiwan.

Whereas, The United States and Taiwan have strong ties based on shared ideals and robust bilateral trade. Taiwan shares the values of freedom, democracy, human rights, rule of law, peace, and prosperity with the United States and the state of Michigan. In 2021, the United States ranked as Taiwan's second-largest trading partner, while Taiwan was the eighth-largest trading partner of the United States, counting the European Union as a single trading partner. The countries shared 113.9 billion dollars in two-way goods trade and 19.8 billion dollars in two-way services trade in that year; and

Whereas, Taiwan is a particularly important trade partner for our nation's agricultural industry. Taiwan imported 3.9 billion dollars' worth of agricultural products from the United States in 2021, making it the sixth-largest market for United States food and agricultural products overall. Examining individual agricultural products, Taiwan was the seventh-largest market for United States soybeans and corn in 2021. Due to our high-quality produce, the United States remains one of Taiwan's largest sources of agricultural products, supplying more than one-fifth of the country's total agricultural imports in 2020; and

Whereas, The state of Michigan and Taiwan have enjoyed a mutually beneficial relationship, with strong bilateral trade and a long history of educational and cultural exchanges. Taiwan was Michigan's tenth-largest export market in Asia in 2022, with over 313 million dollars' worth of Michigan goods exported to Taiwan that year. Since 2006, the Michigan Department of Education and the Taiwanese Ministry of Education have had an English and Chinese language teacher exchange program, helping our citizens to grow closer and learn about each other's cultures. The Taiwan Friendship Caucus in the Michigan Legislature exists to strengthen ties between our governments, our economies, and our people. To ensure this relationship remains strong, Michigan businesses should increase their economic engagement with Taiwan; and

Whereas, The United States could take additional steps to strengthen bilateral trade with Taiwan, which would also enhance Taiwan's trade with the state of Michigan. Trade between our nations could be improved if the United States entered into a bilateral trade agreement and an avoidance of double taxation agreement with Taiwan. Taiwan could also be included in the Indo-Pacific Economic Framework for Prosperity (IPEF), a partnership between many Indo-Pacific nations and the United States that was created to strengthen economic cooperation. The United States invited other Indo-Pacific partners to join the IPEF in May 2022, and Taiwan should be invited to and included in this partnership; and

Whereas, Taiwan has adopted a policy of "steadfast diplomacy" in its foreign relations. This policy "aims at mutual benefit and peace, creating sustainable partnerships with diplomatic allies, and strengthening substantive ties in multiple fields with friendly and like-minded countries." Taiwan is clearly willing to collaborate with the world to deal with global challenges and seek a brighter future together; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives, That we urge the United States government and Michiganders to strengthen ties with Taiwan; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the President of the United States Senate, and the members of the Michigan congressional delegation.

The resolution was referred to the Committee on Government Operations.

Reps. Schmaltz, Alexander, BeGole, Bezotte, Glanville, Haadsma, Liberati, Lightner, Martin, Morse, Rheingans and Rogers offered the following resolution:

House Resolution No. 60.

A resolution to declare March 21, 2023, as World Down Syndrome Day in the state of Michigan.

Whereas, One in every 700 children is born with Down syndrome, representing approximately 6,000 births per year in the United States; and

Whereas, The National Down Syndrome Society, the leading human rights organization for all individuals with Down syndrome, envisions a world in which all people with Down syndrome have the opportunity to enhance their quality of life, realize their life aspirations, and become valued members of welcoming communities; and

Whereas The Down Syndrome Association of West Michigan, Capital Area Down Syndrome Association, Down Syndrome Guild of South East Michigan, Down Syndrome Head Start Program, Washtenaw County Unique Care Connect, Down Syndrome Association of North West Michigan, and Gigi's Playhouse of Detroit are some of the biggest advocates in the Michigan Down Syndrome Community; their mission is to guide Michigan's Down Syndrome Community by connecting them to the partners, programs, education, and resources they need to thrive; and

Whereas, Advancements in Down Syndrome research and inclusive community practices have demonstrated that early intervention, education, social supports, therapeutic care, and positive public attitudes improve each individual’s chances for living a meaningful, productive, and satisfying life in the way they choose; and

Whereas, Individuals with Down syndrome are complete individuals who share fully the human right to strive for and achieve self-fulfillment and reap the rewards of free association with and membership of their communities; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives, That the members of this legislative body declare March 21, 2023, as World Down Syndrome Day in the state of Michigan; and be it further

Resolved, That we join with the individuals and loved ones in the Down syndrome community to support their endeavor for much deserved acceptance of their abilities and talents, but more importantly, acceptance as individuals.

The question being on the adoption of the resolution,
The resolution was adopted.

I hereby give notice that on the next legislative session day I will move to reconsider the vote by which the House concurred in House Bill No. 4004.

Rep. Hall

The question being on the support for the notice offered by Rep. Hall,
The demand was not supported.

The bill was referred to the Clerk for enrollment printing and presentation to the Governor.

By unanimous consent the House returned to the order of

Motions and Resolutions

Reps. Pohutsky, Edwards, Scott, Byrnes, Hill, Young, Neeley, Steckloff, Koleszar, McFall and Brabec offered the following concurrent resolution:

House Concurrent Resolution No. 3.

A concurrent resolution calling on the Archivist of the United States to certify and publish the Equal Rights Amendment as the Twenty-Eighth Amendment to the United States Constitution and calling on the United States Congress to declare the Equal Rights Amendment ratified.

Whereas, The text of the Equal Rights Amendment, as proposed by Congress in 1972, reads as follows:

SECTION 1. Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.

SEC. 2. The Congress shall have the power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article.

SEC. 3. This amendment shall take effect two years after the date of ratification.

Whereas, While similar amendments had been introduced in Congress since 1923, the Equal Rights Amendment achieved the necessary two-thirds vote in each chamber of Congress on March 22, 1972. The joint resolution passed with 354 yeas in the House of Representatives and 84 yeas in the Senate. It was thereupon submitted to the states, with approval by 38 needed to ratify the amendment and render it part of the Constitution; and

Whereas, The Equal Rights Amendment has achieved the support of the requisite three-quarters of the states. Only two months after it was sent to the states for consideration, Michigan ratified the Equal Rights Amendment on May 22, 1972. The Virginia General Assembly voted for ratification in 2020, becoming the thirty-eighth state to do so; and

Whereas, While a limited number of states have purported to rescind their ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment, the text of Article V and historical practice clearly indicate that they cannot do so. Article V provides that amendments become part of the Constitution when "ratified" by the states; it does not grant states the power to rescind their ratification. Attempts to amend Article V to create this power have been unsuccessful. In the past, both Congress and the executive branch officer responsible for certifying amendments to the Constitution have disregarded states' attempts to rescind ratification. In 1868, when the executive branch was uncertain about whether rescission was possible, Congress adopted a concurrent resolution declaring that the Fourteenth Amendment had been ratified and included two states that had voted to rescind ratification in their list of ratifying states; Congress did not seem to think that their rescissions were legally effective. In 1870, the executive branch officer responsible for certifying amendments followed this example and disregarded a supposed rescission when listing ratifying states in his official certification of the Fifteenth Amendment; and

Whereas, The Archivist of the United States is the officer who currently has the statutory duty to certify and publish amendments to the Constitution. This duty is conferred by 1 USC § 106b, which states:

Whenever official notice is received at the National Archives and Records Administration that any amendment proposed to the Constitution of the United States has been adopted, according to the provisions of the Constitution, the Archivist of the United States shall forthwith cause the amendment to be published, with his certificate, specifying the States by which the same may have been adopted, and that the same has become valid, to all intents and purposes, as a part of the Constitution of the United States.

Whereas, The Archivist's statutory duty is illuminated by the history of 1 USC § 106b, case law, and past practice. Early in our nation's history, there was widespread confusion about whether certain amendments had been adopted, because there was not a standardized process for states to notify the federal government that they had voted for ratification and there was not an official process for publishing amendments that were properly ratified. To alleviate this confusion, Congress imposed on an officer in the executive branch the duty to certify and publish new amendments to the Constitution. This duty has been transferred to different officials over time and is now a duty of the Archivist of the United States. The United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit wrote in 1920 that the executive officer's role in the amendment process is "purely ministerial" and that the officer has "no authority" to examine whether it was proper for the states to send their notices of ratification. This has historically been the practice, where certain states claimed to have rescinded their ratification of proposed constitutional amendments. The executive officer did not assert authority over the process by refusing outright to certify the amendments; and

Whereas, The 2023 decision of the D.C. Circuit Court in Illinois v. Ferriero does not bar the Archivist from certifying the Equal Rights Amendment. Although the court held that it could not order the Archivist to certify the Equal Rights Amendment, this was due to the nature of the legal action and the remedy sought, not because the amendment could not and should not be lawfully certified. On the contrary, throughout the opinion, the court indicated that the states arguing for the certification of the Equal Rights Amendment presented plausible interpretations of the law; and

Whereas, While the Archivist's certification of the Equal Rights Amendment is not required to make it legally effective as part of the Constitution, it would send a powerful signal that the amendment should be recognized as having been adopted. Under Article V, the executive branch plays no role in the constitutional amendment process, and Congress did not and could not alter this fact by creating the statutory duty of certification and publication. However, this process is important for resolving confusion about the state of the law. For example, after Michigan became the thirty-eighth state to ratify the Twenty-Seventh Amendment to the Constitution in 1992, over two hundred years after it was proposed by Congress, scholars and even the Speaker of the House of Representatives doubted whether the amendment had become effective. These doubts were dispelled when the Archivist certified the amendment, and Congress subsequently recognized the amendment's validity. The Archivist could help create a consensus about the legal effectiveness of the Equal Rights Amendment by officially certifying and publishing it as part of the Constitution; and

Whereas, The Archivist should not delay the express recognition of equality by refusing to certify the Equal Rights Amendment as part of the highest law of the land. While case law has developed under the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to limit sex-based discrimination, case law can change far more easily than the text of the Constitution itself, as has been demonstrated all too clearly by recent actions of the Supreme Court of the United States. The principle that the government may not deny or abridge equality of rights on account of sex is of such paramount importance that it deserves to be enshrined in the United States Constitution. Congress and the states have done their part to make our imperfect founding document a little more perfect, just as contemplated by Article V. The Equal Rights Amendment has been ratified by three-fourths of the states. Now, the Archivist's only role is to certify and publish it, as statutorily required; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That we call upon the Archivist of the United States to certify and publish the Equal Rights Amendment as the Twenty-Eighth Amendment to the United States Constitution; and be it further

Resolved, That we call upon the United States Congress to declare the Equal Rights Amendment ratified; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the Archivist of the United States and the members of the Michigan congressional delegation.
