FISCAL IMPACT

The costs for a judgeship are shared by the State and the local government in which the judge sits. The State covers salary and retirement costs, while the local government covers the cost of additional benefits, personnel costs, supplies, equipment, office space, etc.

Each district judgeship costs the State just under $200,000 General Fund/General Purpose, with a base salary of approximately $172,100 and costs for payroll taxes and retirement benefits at $24,200.
